

Reversions - The Mission Theatre
6 October 2018, 2pm & 7:30pm

Groundhog Day for Generation Z

Reversions takes its title and runs with it, offering alternative versions, or reversions, of the same night, as a group of 5 students reunite at a house party. As each version unfolds more is revealed about each individual character, their desires, past relationships and feelings for each other. This central device of repeating the same night allows for some interesting opportunities for the actors to express themselves and explore their characters' motivations, but overall is repetitive and lacks the depth required to make this a rewarding experience for the audience. The Mission Theatre itself provided an intimate space for the play, allowing the audience to feel that they themselves were a part of the group onstage, sharing their frustrations with the one character also aware of the loop in time. Catch one of the further two showings on Saturday and attempt to uncover the truth behind this time warp.

Annie Rose